Syria Agrees to Supply Jordan with Oil

Syria has agreed to supply Jordan with refined oil products at market prices, according to US Embassy and press reports. The volume of deliveries will be determined on a month-to-month basis, depending on Amman's ability to pay and transportation limitations. [REDACTED]

Comment: Jordan has been seeking alternative sources of oil because the war has drastically reduced deliveries from Iraq--Amman's only supplier. Despite the agreement with Damascus, Jordan will continue to seek other suppliers and Iraqi crude oil because transport and financial problems probably will limit Syrian deliveries. [REDACTED]
